PURPOSE: To establish a guideline for the protection of library staff, users, and property.

POLICY STATEMENT: Individuals who use the Eastern Oklahoma District Library System's branch library facilities, equipment and resources do so at the discretion of EODLS. It is expected that patrons respect the facility, equipment and staff and behave appropriately. Any destructive, illegal, threatening or other inappropriate behavior will be addressed and may be reported to local law enforcement officials. EODLS reserves the right to limit or restrict an individual's use of the library, its material and equipment.

The attached "Notice" is posted in each Branch Library.

EODLS will not tolerate destructive, threatening, illegal or other inappropriate behavior. Examples of inappropriate conduct and EODLS response are outlined below.

Destruction/tampering with library property or private property on library premises: Individuals who destroy or tamper with the facilities and property of EODLS or the property of library users and staff present at library sites will be reported to law enforcement authorities immediately. If the individual(s) involved do not leave the property at the request of the library staff, a staff member will request that attending law enforcement authorities escort the individual (s) from the library property. The library manager, in consultation with the EODLS administration, will determine the extent of the sanctions. Sanctions may include a range of interventions up to and including the withdrawal of library privileges, barring library visits or pressing charges.

Endangerment: Individuals who behave in ways that endanger any staff member or other library user will be reported to law enforcement officials and will be removed from the premises. The individual(s) may be barred from the library for a period to be determined in consultation with library administration.

Abusive action or language: Individuals who verbally or physically threaten any staff member or other library user, or individuals who are disruptive may be reported to law enforcement officials and staff may request the removal of the offending individuals from the premises. The individuals may be barred from future library use/privileges for a week.

Illegal activities: Individuals who make illegal use of the resources of the library, including access to internet sites and resources that appeal to prurient interests or child exploitation, will be subject to immediate interruption of their activities and may suffer consequences up to and including barring the individual(s) from the library and its use. Such incidents will be reported to law enforcement officials and library privileges will be revoked for a month.

Interference with other users, interference with minors: Individuals who attempt to make personal contact with others, including minors, for purposes of illegal or illicit behavior in an EODLS library will be reported to law enforcement officials immediately and will be subject to disbarment from the library and its use privileges for one year.

Individuals who use library computers to make contact with others, including minors, for illegal or illicit purposes, or individuals who attempt to entice minors for any purpose, including illicit or illegal behavior, through on-line contact from a library computer location will be reported to law enforcement officials immediately and may be barred from future use of the library and its privileges for one year.

Investigation procedure: Library administration and managers are authorized, and may authorize staff, to cooperate with the proper investigation of complaints. Proper investigations will include adherence to the library's privacy and freedom of information policies. Proper investigation will include a search warrant when, in the conduct of a proper investigation, it appears necessary to override the library's freedom of information and privacy policies. Library staff will continue to operate within the library's policies until directed to do otherwise by the library administration or the site manager acting under the authority of the library district administration.
